Circuit Description :

We will leave in the morning from your hotel with direction to the interior. We will visit the National Park La Campana and its biodiversity. This park was created on October 17, 1967 and has been administered by CONAF since 1974. In 1985 it was declared a Biosphere Reserve by UNESCO.

The fauna of the National Park La Campana is composed of a high representativity of species of the Chilean Mediterranean as of other migratory species (the case of birds and felines). There are 100 animal species, grouped into mammals, birds, reptiles and amphibians. As for flora, this park develops an important number of "native" plant species of different latitudes and lengths of Chile and "endemic", in total are 320 species of plants. The sector of Ocoa is characterized by having one of the last forests of Palma Chilena, species in danger of extincion. We will have time to enjoy the scenery and eat our box lunch.

Return to your hotel.

Passengers are advised to go on the tour with: sun block, slippers, backpack, camera and light windbreaker.
